NO BOYCOTT WANTED.

As soon as the telegram was received that the Atlanta Constitution had proposed a grand convention to boycott all articles made in the north if the force bill should become a law, the CHRONICLE pronounced against it as an unwise and impracticable measure. We were surprised that a paper of such breadth and such influence as the Constitution should propose a scheme in such direct conflict with its past broad and glorious record. The suggestion of the boycott by the Constitution, and its endorsement by GOVERNOR GORDON, has done more to secure the adoption of the infamous force bill than all the arguments made by the enemies of the south. If all the papers and public men of the south should endorse the position of the Constitution and GOVERNOR GORDON, there is no power that could prevent the passage of the force bill by the Senate.

Under the circumstances, the talk of boycotting the north is the extreme of nonsense, and the talk of the Constitution that "The people of the south need no time--no preparation for their unanimous boycott of northern business if the Force bill becomes a law," is all bosh and folly. The south is dependent upon the north for a great many things, and the north has likewise a dependence upon the south. To talk of declaring commercial and industrial war is a narrowness a lack of national breadth that is not worthy of the great paper which HENRY GRADY made the ablest exponent of a reunited country.

Force cannot be overcome with folly. Our friends at the north need to have the south act so wisely and so free from passion as to strengthen their hands in the fight they are making for us, and for right. We injure them and the cause whenever we lose our temper and our judgment, and propose violent and intemperate measure to check hostile legislation.

Let us boycott the boycott.

A grand convention of Southern men to protest against the passage of the Force bill, and to appeal to the wisdom and conservatism of the north for their co-operation in the fight against it, would do good. But talk about boycotting everything made in the north, is as silly a proposition as sensible men ever made or advocated. We are glad to see that, except the Constitution, no great southern paper has advocated the boycott, and with the exception of Gov. GORDON, no prominent and able southern man has endorsed it. They were hasty and doubtless now see their mistake. On the other hand SENATOR VANCE, ROGER Q. MILLA, and the other great, wise and patriotic southern men, have declared against the proposed boycott, and deprecated any such action as both foolish and unwise. A mass meeting of the citizens of Atlanta declared against the boycott and made an appeal to the business interests of the north and all patriotic Americans to use their influence against the Force bill. The Richmond Chamber of Commerce did likewise. We hope that the Chamber of Commerce in every town in North Carolina will follow their example.

LIVING ISSUES.

Every few days we hear some one talking earnestly against parties on the ground that they do not concern themselves with "living issues," and that it is necessary for a man to be independent of party to advocate "living issues." The CHRONICLE has no patience with such talk. There is no foundation for it in fact. The truth is that the only opportunity that is open to the citizen to lend the weight of his influence to advance "living issues" is to ally himself with one of the great parties. The line of battle has been drawn up and two parties confront each other. All other fighting this year is mere bushwhacking and skirmishing, and will amount to nothing, no matter how honest the bushwhackers and skirmishers are.

If the Democratic leaders (and they are in the main, as honest and as faithful and as able as any men who ever represented a constituency) do not fight for "living issues," then what does their opposition to the Force bill mean? That is a vital issue--one that invades the homes and firesides of every citizen of the South, and one that threatens Home Rule. As one man, the Democratic party stands united against it, and will stand there to the death. Above every other question at this crisis, the Force bill is the "living issue."

The Democrats are consistently fighting against the protective tariff and the enormous piling up of tariff taxation which the McKinley bill imposes upon an already over-burdened people, discriminating, as it does, against the agricultural classes. Is not this a "living issue?" The life-blood of the people is being sapped by the excessive tariff taxation, and if any issue can be a "living" one, it's this one. The Democratic party is struggling and has ever struggled against extravagant expenditures and appropriations. Is it not a "living issue?" To fight against the large increase of expenditures which the Republicans advocate in order to continue the protective tariff? The people pay for all these things for which money is appropriated, and it is their "living" that is steadily taken from them for the extravagant appropriations.

The majority of the Democracy has consistently fought for the remonetization of silver and its free coinage. In 1878 they passed a bill in the House for free coinage which the Republican Senate defeated, and in this Congress they stood almost solidly for it. Is not that a "living issue?" There must be more money; the stringency in the money market relieved. Is not that a "living issue?"

The CHRONICLE hopes that all the people will think about these things. The Democratic party doubtless makes mistakes. If so let us right them. But let us not impair its usefulness by saying that it does not deal with "living issues." It does, and what it advocates, if adopted, would make our people more prosperous. Let all of us continue to fight for the above "living issues" and all other wise "living issues" which will benefit the people, not forgetting in North Carolina that without unity we can neither get these or any other reforms.

A NORTH CAROLINA MASTER.

(Wilmington Messenger.)

MR. WALKER MEARS has had printed at the Messenger job office a nice pamphlet containing the sermon preached before the University of North Carolina in 1833, by Rev. WM. HOOPER, LL. D., upon "The Force of Habit." It is a masterly discussion of an important subject. We are much inclined to the opinion that Dr. Hooper was not only one of the most learned men North Carolina ever produced, but that he was probably the most learned. He was in our judgment the very best writer yet born in this State. He had the literary faculty in excellent development, and he had a vein of Attic wit and richness of learning that would have made him famous if he had lived in Boston all his life and been duly influenced by the enthusiasm for letters and companionship of the men of genius and scholarship and wit who have adorned the literary centre of New England, and in the past, of the United States.

Dr. Hooper was a gentle, lovable scholar. His style is aromatic of culture and study, and betrays the man. And yet it is easy, limpid, almost unstudied, in its purity. He was a born humorist and satirist with a blade keen and incisive. He could be almost as delightfully engaging in his humor as WASHINGTON IRVING, and as corrosive and acute almost as DEAN SWIFT when he applied the scalpel of criticism or the cautery. His best writings published in a volume and accompanied by a well executed biographical sketch would be as interesting a volume as belongs to our very scant native literature. We have not read any production of much length by Dr. Hooper since soon after the war. We have not read any of his addresses or sermons since long before the war. We have written as he impressed us in our early manhood. Mr. MEARS has ventured to have the sermon on "Force of Character" republished because of its intrinsic value, and its being out of print. The young men should read it. Two copies will be furnished for 25 cents. It is a labor of love, and we hope the public will appreciate the effort to spread good native literature and do good thereby.

The Pamlico county convention endorsed Senator Vance for re-election.

A rich man married a pretty girl
And a milliner had her;
And in a year that milliner
Was the richest of the three.

PREACHERS AND POLITICS.

DR. KELLY is a very fickle man, and cannot be depended upon. About two years ago, when there was a heated discussion in Nashville, Tenn., because a Methodist preacher denounced a famous actress from the pulpit, DR. KELLY rushed into print to criticize the preacher and brought down upon himself the criticism of his church. He then "repented," and became one of the most violent opponents of "worldly amusements." Some weeks ago he was nominated for Governor of Tennessee on the Prohibition ticket. BISHOP KESNER very properly informed him that he could not be a Methodist pastor and a candidate for office. It was then announced that he had decided not to run for Governor. Now it is stated that he has again changed his mind and will preach his farewell sermon, and accept the nomination. His Presiding Elder announced from his pulpit Sunday morning that DR. KELLY could not be a pastor and a candidate. The Bishop and Presiding Elder have acted wisely, and it is to be regretted that DR. KELLY--able as he is known to be--preferred politics to preaching. The Bishop gave him a chance to stick to his last, and to continue preaching the gospel. He preferred politics, and then the good Bishop, imitating Ko Ko,

"Knashed his teeth
And from his sheath
He drew his snicker-ence," and Pastor KELLY is pastor no more.

The CHRONICLE is not of that number who believe that preachers ought to wrap themselves in their sacerdotal robes and have nothing to do with great public questions. On the contrary, we believe that they ought to be deeply concerned upon great public questions, and use their influence to secure reforms. But we have observed that when a preacher becomes a politician, his work as a preacher is perfunctory and is fruitless. "This one thing I do" is the best motto for a minister of the gospel.

BOYCOTT THE BOYCOTT.

The Force bill was introduced for the sole purpose of raising sectional issues and bad feeling, so that through such bad feeling the Republicans could continue in control of the government. The action of the Atlanta Constitution is exactly what HOAR, REED & Co. desire. It kindles sectional animosity anew, and serves as an argument to south-haters why the Force bill ought to prevail. We are sorry that the Constitution fell into the trap set for it by the south-haters, and unwittingly gave them an argument which they will use with terrible effect. The CHRONICLE says: Let us boycott the boycott.

SOME PEOPLE HAVE HAVE an erroneous notion that the proposed Soldiers' Home is in the nature of a poor-house. This is far from correct. The Soldiers' Home will be in no sense a charity. It will be a pleasure to the people to make the Home a place of honorable and quiet retreat, where every soldier will be an honored guest of the people of the State without any feeling of dependence, and where he will be the recipient of the most delicate attentions. God bless them! In the home they may have their own ways, and be helped and revered by all our people.

THE CHRONICLE would have Mr. N. A. DUNNING and all other men who come into North Carolina to speak to the people, that any intimations reflecting upon SENATOR VANCE's political and private integrity are repudiated by every decent citizen of the State. SENATOR VANCE is honest, and if there is a Senator who is hostile to Wall street, it is VANCE; and the intimation that he is influenced by the money power is foully false, and no man would make it who knows what he is talking about.

EDGECOMBE DISAPPOINTED

That Her Talented Son was Not Re-nominated--Will Hand Over His High Trust With Dignity.

(COT. STATE CHRONICLE.)

TARBORO, N. C., July 24.--Edgcombe is sore and disappointed over the failure of the Weldon convention to renominate Judge Phillips, but the Judge takes his defeat with perfect equanimity. His friends wish to bear testimony to the fact that he has conducted himself in a manly, dignified manner during the whole time that the nomination has been under consideration, and feel that he will hand over his high trust to his successor but the more elevated for its having been entrusted to his keeping for the past eight years.

[The CHRONICLE, in common with many people in the State will regret the retirement of JUDGE PHILLIPS. He will carry with him the esteem, confidence and appreciation of the people whom he has served faithfully and efficiently in the responsible and honorable position of Supreme Court Judge.--EDITOR.]

SENATOR VANCE.

[Monroe Register.]

As the Register expected, the Union County Democratic Convention passed resolutions strongly endorsing Hon. Zeb Vance.

This is right and proper. If there is one man who has remained true and steadfast to his convictions of duty that man is Z. B. Vance. He is a Senator of whom North Carolina is justly proud, and he is one man who will contend for the right and oppose wrong, no matter how great the odds against him.

There may be a few railroad magnates, and possibly a few ambitious men who would like to see him defeated, but the rank and file of the people are for him, because they know he is for them, and they will see to it that "our Zeb" succeeds himself. Vance is solid with the people.

LIVELY SELMA.

Something Always Doing--Crops--Picnics--Personal and Social.

[Special Cor. of STATE CHRONICLE]
SELMA, N. C., July 23.--Selma is about the liveliest and jolliest town in the State according to size and population and it even surpasses some of the larger towns. The young people here have just the best time on record. There is always something going on to get fun out of--picnics, parties, entertainments, &c.

There was a pic nick at Holt's pond last Friday which was one of the most enjoyable occasion we ever attended. Selma and Smithfield will hold a joint pic nic at Creech's pond next Tuesday. Now for another big time.

The crops here are fine. All are satisfied; they could hope for no better. Politics are all the "go." The politician's tribunal convenes every day in front of a certain store in town and the candidates are discussed one by one. Sage opinions are passed on every subject connected with politics.

Miss Amanda Harris, of Raleigh; Miss Emma Hall and Miss Lela Cobb, of Goldsboro; Miss Lula Brooks, of Shelby, and Miss Lizzie Avery, of this county, are visiting here.

Mrs. Rev. J. K. Howell started to-day for Yanceyville, where her husband has been called to take charge of the church.

I repeat with emphasis what I said in the beginning--Selma is the jolliest place in the State to its size.

TREBUB.

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.--U. S. Government Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

W. H. & R. S. TUCKER & CO.

We again desire the attention of our customers to our Mark-Down sales, that have been going on since the 14th inst.

We have during the past week sold a great many goods, but not near so many as we wish to sell, and that should not be carried over until the fall.

We had extremely hot weather and then several rains that have cut down the sales; but this week we will make greater sacrifices to make greater sales.

All through the store, carpets, curtains, furniture, upholstery, small wares, &c., dress silks, dress goods, white goods, laces, embroideries, wash goods, gingham, satteens, shoes, &c., &c., all over the house in piles on tables, to be sold.
